

Safe Food Handling

This course is suitable for anyone wishing to learn the basics of food safety.

John Henry Institute's (JHI) Safe Food Handling course provides a convenient and easy first step for all staff working or intending on working with food. It is ideally suited as part of an induction program and can be used to help meet your legal obligation to provide adequate training to staff.

This course is communicated in an easy-to-understand context and provides participants with an understanding of all the fundamental food safety principals.

Most food businesses in Australia are legally required to implement some form of training for all staff that are handling food. JHI's non-accredited Safe Food Handling course provides the perfect way to ensure you and your staff have a fundamental understanding of proper food safety and are able to access this training at an affordable price.

Whether working occasionally with food in the workplace, or simply desiring to learn the most important aspects of safe food handling in the home, this course will effectively teach you the most critical food safety principals.

Providing the important fundamentals of food safety, JHI's course is recommended for anyone who ever handles food in the workplace.

Training can be conducted on site at your premises or at The John Henry Institute training facilities at Suites 5 & 6, 68 Clarence Street, Port Macquarie at no extra cost to you.

Course Content:

- Follow Hygiene Procedures and identify hygiene hazards
- Report any personal health issues
- Prevent food and other item contamination
- Prevent cross contamination
- Preparation and presentation of meals
- Delivery and distribution of meals
- Course Duration: 2.5 hours
- Course Cost: $80 per person
- Min 12 / Max 15 participants
- Face to face instruction from an experienced Food Safety Qualified Trainer.
- Notes and a Workbook are provided to all participants.

Note: Having the trainer on-site creates interest in the residents, their families and guests. Continuous improvement should be seen.

Contact Belinda on T 02 6583 2321

E belinda.steigrad@jhi.edu.au | W www.johnhenryinstitute.edu.au